Well-informed sources are not raling out the possibility that Saudi Arabia and Jordan, together with Guif states like Kuvait, Babrain and the United Arab Emirates — which he particle the United Arab Emirates — which the within the both physically and politically is far hits close to the Saudis — might new form at farst a large blocking the Egyptian-Israeli pence i more and process, would not join the rejec-8, that in instances grouping of Iraq, Syria and Libys. These sources note that both Jordan and Saudi Arabia are desply concerned by the implications of the emerging alliance batwaen Damascus and Baghdad, and that natther kingdom can afford to alienate the U.S. by moving too close to the Soviet-backed rejectionists.

The possibility of soms kind of Saudi-Jordanian understanding has been given immediacy in the last few days by intensive diplomatic activity by both sides over the weekend. Hussein sent messages to Khaled over the weekend as well as to the rulers of Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman ad the UAE. Yesterday Jordanian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Hassan Ibrahim returned to Amman after a two-day visit to Kuwait and Babrain, while Sandt Foreign Minister Prince Sand al Faisal held talks in Bahrain.

Although Jordan has attacked the forthcoming peace treaty and of-ficially demanded the implementa-tion of resolutions passed by last November's anti-Sadat Bagbdad summit (calling for the expulsion of Egypt from the Arab League and an economic and political boycott against it) Amman's criticism has been far more moderate than the vicious personal attacks on Sadat in the Iraqi and Syrian media. Observers believe that the acid test for judging the extent of Jordanian-Saud! coordination will be whether Riyadh agrees to attend a new Arab summit to discuss the specifics of action to be taken against Egypt.

At their meeting at Mafrak in northern Jordan iast Saturday, Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat was reported to bave asked Hussein to suggest to the Saudis that they participate in such a summit. If they decline to do so, or suggest a meeting at a lower level, this would add further, waight to the assessment that Riyadh is unwilling to come out strongly against Sadat.

Iraq yesterday announced official-ly that it had invited all 22 members of the Arab League to send their foreign and finance ministers to Baghdad for an emergency meeting next Tussday, the day after the planned signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty in Washington.

In a speech marking Jordanian Teachers' Day, Hussein yesterday warned that the bilateral agreement between Egypt and Israel "will leave behind a strategic and psychological gap" that would have to be faced by continuing Arab solidarity...and the reorganization of the balance of power through the buildup of the Arabs' own strength.'

But the king reiterated that Jurdan does not oppose "a just and com prebensive peace settlement, secur ing Arab rights, ending the occupation and establishing a just peace." Such a settlement, Hussein said. would have to guarantee "total Israeli withdrawal, the return of Arab Jerusalem and a restoration of Palestinian rights." Hs did not mention anti-Egyptian sanctions.

WASHINGTON. - U.S. Secretary of Defence Harold Brown is expected to inform his Egyptian counterpart. Gen. Kamal Hassan All, later this week that the U.S. will provide Egypt with a $1.5b, arms package. Included will be F-4 Pbantom figbterbomhere, improved Hawk antiaircraft missiles, M-60 tanks, armoured personnel carriere, submarines, destroyers and other ophisticated military equipment.

Well-placed U.S. sources disclosed that the proposed arms package will be financed largely by the U.S. This presenis a significant change in the U.S.-Egyptian military supply relationship. Until now, the Egyptians had received U.S. financial assistance only for economic projects.

Word of the proposed package eame just 24 hours after Israel Defence Minister Ezer Weizman left Vashington with a $3b. U.S. commitment to help pay for two new Negev airbases and redeployment of Israeli forces from Sinai to the Negev. In addition, Weizman received approval from the Carter administration for nearly all of Israel's pending "higb priority" arms requests.

Authorized for eale to Israel in this latest package, according to reliable U.S. Defence Department sources, were 200 M-60 A3 tanks, 600 Maverick air-to-ground misslies, 600 AIM-9L air-to-air missiles, and 200 155-mm. cannon, as well as other items. The administration also agreed to an Israeli request that delivery of the first batcb of 75 F-18 fighter-bombers already ordered he accelerated by 18

Both proposed packages must be submitted to the U.S. Congress for approval, where White House officials expect little resistance.

Other sources, however, registered some initial fears that Israel supporters in the Congress may try to block the sale of the Phantoms to Egypt. The Phantoms, an older aircraft, clearly are offensive in nature, The F-5Es approved for Egypt last year are more of a defensive fighter. These wers the two postulates of Israel policy laid down in the Knesset yesterday by Prime Minister Menabem Begin as he asked the Honse to ratify "A Treaty of Peace Between the Arab Republic of Egypt and the State of "Camp David Two" summit with Israel.'

Two versions of the historic document - 53 typewritten pages in English and 30 ln Hebrew translation -- were placed on the desk of each of the Knesset's 120 members.

The copies included the preamhle, the military and political appendices and the "sgreed minutes" to them, the adjunct concerning implementation of autonomy in the administered areas, accompanying letters relating to the exchange of ambassadors, and the American undertakings regar-ding the duties of UN forces.

As he wound up a two-hour address in his familiar dramatic mode of delivery, Begin asserted: "Dr. Khalil, prime minister of Egypt, has made two declarations. One, that Israel should return to the boun-daries of June 4, 1967, and two, that the eastern part of Jerusalem abould be detached from the State of larael.

To these statements by Khalil, Begin replied from the rostrum of the Knesset: "Dr. Khslil, I wish to inform you that Israel will never return to the June 4, 1976 lines. And please make a note of the following --Jerusalem, the united city, is the eternal capital of Israel. Jerusalem will never again be divided and shall remain united forever."

Even after the Knesset approves the treaty and he signs in the name of Iaraei, "we shall still confront problems of security," said Begin. "With the treaty sigoed, ws shall still have facing us on our northeastern front the following: eight armoured divisions: six mechanized divisions 15 self-sufficient brigades; 5,920 tanks; 3,320 cannon; 800 bombers and fighter planes; 113 artillery hatteries; nine Scud missile launchers; 14 torpedo boats; two frigates; and there is more to the Begin bade the lawmakers to confirm the peace treaty with Egypt and clear the way for "the very serious problem - arrangements for autonomy " - still to be negotiated. "Why is this peace treaty so important?" he asked rhetorically, "This is the first peace pact Israel is ever algning since we proclaimed our state. This is the first pesce treaty after fivs wars in which we have lost 12,000 of our people.

"Our aim, our yearning and our dream is to smash this belix of hatred. We must sign this treaty because it is a human act of the highest degree — the first peace treaty in the history of this nation.

"And what would have resulted? We would have brought the whole peacemaking process to a halt for an indefinite period of time. After that balt in the process, would President Sadat have agreed to meet with our foreign minister or defence minister in order to negotiate a peace treaty? Or, would Preaident Sadat have agreed to meet with me? Of course not!"

Begin explained the two "unacceptable" proposals that were handed to Foreign Minister Mosbe Dayan by the Americans at Camp David Two - "either at the concurrence or inltiative of Egypt."

One of the proposis sought to qualify Article 6 of the treaty by eliminating its priority over existing treaties to which Egypt is a party. The other unacceptable proposal was a rewording of the joint

'linkage" letter that was to be sign ed by Sadat and Begin and attached as an adjunct to the treaty. Begin told the House: "When we received a copy of this proposal from Foreign Minister Dayan, Dr. (Meir) Rosenne, the Foreign Ministry's legal adviser, and I read the proposed letter and discovered seven glaring deviations from the original Camp David o agremeent - points which we would never have accepted In the first place."

Begin ilsted the "seven deviations" as follows:

The early supply of F-16 fighters to Israel, successfully negotiated by Defence Minister Ezer Weizman in Wasbington this wesk, will necessitate a massive organizational effort by the Israel Air Force.

The first aircraft are expected, according to Weisman, 18 monthe ahead of their 1951 target date --possibly this year. A team of experts from General Dynamics, the aircraft's manufacturer, is expected in Israel in the very near future to help plan the absorption process.

The early arrival of the aircraft and their absorption is complicated by the logistical demands already facing the Air Force with the need to vacate the two Sinai airfields, as demanded by the peace agreements, and overeet the building of three alternative fields in the Negev. The move and the absorption of new aircraft has to be done while maintaining a high state of alert in the face of the potential threat to Israel from the eastern front.

The absorption process of multimillion-dollar weapons systema especially aircraft. where the sophistication of electronics, avionics and mechanics has reached new levels, is a long process and is usually planned in great detail at tha time of the signing of a contract to coincide with the arrival of the aystem.

put some of its own systems into most of the aircraft on order. The introduction of Israeli-made systems was timed to coincide with the delivery of the later models, and it is doubtful whether Israeli manufacturers will be able to step up their timetables by 18 months to mset the new deadline.

One factor which cases the burden of early arrival is that the F-16 possesses the same engine - the F-100-PW-100T.F. - as the F-15, which has been in service in Israel for three years and with which Air Force technicians are highly familiar. Israel has also catalogued spare parts requirements and maintenance techniques for the engins -a key fac-tor which no doubt made it possible for Weizman to press for an early deal.

Khalil blasts Begin address in Knesset

CAIRO. — The Egyptian government yestarday condemned Prime Minister Menabem Begin's dsciarations before the Knesset earlier in the day as "insuspicious" for peace. But, when asked wbether the hardline speech would affect President Anwar Sadat's plans or the chances of signing the peace treaty, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said. "I don't think so."

In a statement issued by Khalil, the Cairo government insisted that Israel should evacuate all occupied Arab lands, including East Jerusalem, and that the Palestinians be allowed to determins their destiny as part of an overall Middle East settlement.

The Cairo newspaper "Al-Ahram" said Sadat will leave on Saturday for the U.S. and will stay overnight in an unnamed European capital, before arriving in Washington for the signing ceremony expected on Monday. Khalil beld a previously unscheduled meeting with U.S. Ambassador Hermann Elits to discuss arrangements for Sadat's visit as well as Begin's speech. In the statement to the press, he said Begin'n declarations were an "inauspicious opening for a new era in which we had boped that all would work for laying down the sound foundations of a just and durable peace."

Egyptian Foreign Ministry sources said, however, that Egypt was not really surprised by Begin's remarks to the Knesset. "Any side has the right to make any statements it likes." one source said.

Begin told the Knesset: "My dear, honourable Dr. Khalil, write this down: Jerusalem, the one Jerusalem, is Israel's eternal capital. It will never be divided again."

Within a matter of bours, Khalil fired back declaring that what Begin said "contradicts the bases of the peace settlement agreed upon in Camp David and spoils the atmosphere which we bad hoped would prevail during the signing of an agreemant."

"As for the Paiestinian question," the statement continued, "the Camp David accord clearly stipulatee the necessity of solving the question from all its aspects, thus taking into consideration the legal rights of the Palestinians. It is along this principle that they will decide their future."

Khalii argued that the same principle of "non-acquisition of territory by force" which applied to Israell withdrawal from Sinal also "is applicable to all the territories, foremost Arab Jerusalem." This principle, he said, was the essence of UN Resolution 242 which is mentioned in the preamble of the propos-sd treaty. (UPI, Reuter)

problem and are trying to find ways

By ASHER WALLFISH Post Knesset Reporter The Knesset debate inevitably gave rise to disrespectful thoughts as it wound its interminable progress through the day.

Premier Menahem Begin made one of the longest political speeches in the history of the Knesset when he asked the House to approve the draft treaty with Egypt yesterday.

Many parliamentary veterans commented, after hearing him out for two whole bours, that the premier had provided a minutely detailed hriefing, and not a statesman's survey on the eve of the signature of the treaty. So there was conside. able disappointment and impatience, amid a feeling of deja tru.

Begin spoke as though he were telling the story of the peace negotiations, commencing with the crisis over the Invitation to meet Egyptian Premier Mustapha Khaill at a summit. He spoke as though the communications media had oot yet been invented, reporting to his bome community after extensive travels abroad.

So much so, that, after Begin described how he had received a call from U.S. President Jimmy Carter on the Saturday evening in Washington, Labour's Haim Bar-Lev tried to prick the balloon with a sarcastic interruption in his alow hass

"Just what time did Carter call?" Soms said that Begin prohably wanted to make the development of the negotiations into a matter of recorded history, through the Knesset minutes, since this - unlike cabinet proceedings or proceedings in the faction or Knesset committees - was official public material. It is assumed that next Monday, when Begin addresses the U.S. Congress in Wasbington in the company of Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, he will make an inspirational address in which he will rise to the majesty of the occasion and voice the aspirations of the head of Israel's government for the period of peace ahcad.

Despite the discursive nature of his briefing, given ex-tempore except when he quoted at length from documents, Begin was unhappy when a couple of his ministers started whispering together. He childed them in the gentle sort of tone which parllamentarians know is usually his most effective. After that, ministers did not talk during bis specch. If they had no choice, they passed notes to each other.

By ARYEH BUBINSTEIN Post Knesset Reporter Shimoo Peres kicked off the marathon Knesset debate yesterday, saying his party was not enthusiastic about the peace agreement. It was difficult to exaggerate the gravity of the sacrificas Israel had agreed to in Sinai and of the problems involved in the autonomy plan. But if the agreement were not approved, it would mean the failure of any chance of peace

Peres said that within the government there was "an opposition" that was determined that nothing should come of the autonomy scheme. This group was undermining confidence regarding the government's intentions

Would it really be to Israei'e advantage if the autonomy plan came to naught? Peres asked. Could Israel then hope to develop normal relations with Egypt? Would the problem of the large Arab population both in Israel and the territories disappear? Would their high rate of natural increase cease? Would their national aspirations erode? Would the Arah world acquiesce?

But above all, Peres asked, did Israel really want the IDF to rule forever over another nation? And this after the government had agreed at Camp David that there is a Palestinian nation that has legitimate rights? A fair solution to the problem of the million Arabs in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza area was essential not only for them, but for Israel itself, so that it would give concrete expression to the concepts of justice of the Jewish people.

Peres rejected the prime milnister's interpretation that autonomy would apply only to "the inhabitants" of the territories and not to the territories themeelves. That was not consonant with the Camp David agreements, he sald. The latter epoke not of self. adminstration but of selfgovernment. And bow would it be ssible for Israel to rule over the land when it had promised not to ruls over the inhabitants?

Knesset talkathon — the first 10 hours

While the Alignment would vote for the government'e motion to approve the peace agreement, Peres said, it would also submit a resolution of its own. This, among other things, declares that autonomy is to be regarded only as a temporary arrangement until a territorial compromise is worked out.

Moshe Arens (Likud-Herut), chairman of the Foreign Affairs and Defeoce Committee, said that while everyone hoped the signing of the peace treaty would usher in an era of peace between Israei and Egypt, Israel was paying too high a price. What seemed to be in store for Israel was not sncouraging, Arens eaid. It could expect the consolidation of the Eastern Bloc against it; a confrontation with Egypt over autonomy, with the U.S. exerting preeaure in favour of Egypt'e demands; the gradual contraction of Its territory in Sinai; and inevitable increased dependence on the U.S.

Arens, who voted against the Camp David agreemant had no doubt that there would be an attempt to exploit Israel's increased vulnerability. The concessions made hy the government went too far, the risks were too great, It was too much of a gamhle.

Zerah Warbaftlg (National Religious Party) said that the autonomy plan was a serious effort to solve a most difficult prohism. It involved many dangers, hut it also embodied many opportunities and could lead to friendly relations between the two peoplee.

At the hurning bush, God promised Mosee to bring the children of Israel "to a good land and a large" (eretz tova urchava). A large land for its own sake bad never been a Jewish Ideal, Warhaftig said. Contraction of territory could actually add to Israel'e strength. And if iargeness conflicted with goodness there was no doubt what Israei's choice must

Meir Talmi (Alignment-Mapam) said be did not know the secret that the prime minister had "whispered in the cars of the NRP ministers" about autonomy that allayed their fears. But bc did know that Housing Minister David Levy, deputizing for Begin at Monday's meeting of the Herut Central Comnittee, bad declared that Israei would remain in Judea, Samaria and Gaza "forever." The government was sowing liiusions on this subject, the people would have to pay the price. That promise of "forever" could not be fulfilled any more than the promise of a present memher of the government, not eo many years ago, that Israal would remain in the Rafiah area "until the year 2000." Ministers who were promising the expansion of settlements in Judea and Samaria and further expropriation of Arah land there should learn something

It was high time, Talmi said, that everyone understood that Israei could not continue to rule over a million Arabs that objected to such rule. Autonomy could only be a transitional solution.

Stef Werthelmer (Shai) praised the prime minister, despite his having bean in the opposition for almost 30 years, for baving overcome his suspicions of Egypt's motives. It was now up to him to instil confidence in the people, who are still suspicious and apprebensive, so that the country can meet the future with con-

Painting a picture of what peace could mean for Israel, Wertheimer eaid that foreign visitors in the future should not be taken to Yad Vashem but to flourishing enterprises. And visiting statesmen should not be greeted at the airport by a military guard of bonour but by children carrying flowers.

Moshe Katsav (Likud-Herut) called for a referendum to enable the people to express their view on the peace treaty. Peace with Egypt was not an issue in the 1977 elections, and the government and the Knesset had no mandate to decide so fateful a question. The Knesset had beard Begin's explanations about Article 6 of the treaty, but the fact remained that Egypt was a party to a mutual defence pact with other Arab states.

Abba Ebaa (Alignment-Labour) said that Egypt must understand what a trauma it is for Israel to relinquish settlements and strategic space, to replace an Israeli military government with Arab seifgovernment. But even more must Israel erstand the tension involved for Egypt's cutting itself off from the Arab consensus. Never before had an Arah or Moslem ruler dared to do such a thing.

But it was an illusion to think that Egypt was about to abandon entirely Its eenior position in the Arab world. Egypt would never accept the sort of tonomy envisioned by Minister Moebe Niseim which, practically speaking, meant the continuation of Israeli rule, except for a few crumbs of local power to the inhabitants.

Eban said that if the autonomy is implemented as it was meant to be, It can only be a transition to independent Arab rule. That did not bother him, so long as Israei'e basic interests were ganteed: defensible bc ders and security arrangements. The fact that the treaty speaks of "autonomy" rather than in-dependence was entirely devoid of significance. Every process had a dynamic that was not always consonant with the intentions of the formulators.

on the government to tell the people the truth: that owing to the conflicting interpretations of autonomy, a crisis over this subject was bound to develop.

Yosef tamir (Likud-Liberais) said that with the advent of peace Israei would now be able to devote attention to internal problems, oot the least of which is the quality of life, which it had been compelled to neglect up to now

Meir Pa'il (Sheli) said that unless the treaty with Egypt is linked with a settlement of the Paiestlnian problem on the West Bank and Gaza, e was danger that a comprehenwith Egypt would not serve as a "model" for further agreements: that Israei would not divest itself of. defensible borders and would not dismantle settiements on the West Bank.

Moshe Meron (Likud-Liberale) stressed the importance of reaching an understanding with the moderate Israeil Arabe with respect to autonomy. He closed with a call -- in Arabic — to the Egyptian people: "Come to the peace process with the eams joy, love and good will that we are coming with, for the sake of a better future - in peace!"

Imri Bon (Alignment-Mapam) charged the prime minister with having relinquished security borders insturn for mere promises, and with having ruined the idea of a territorial compromise. The government's autonomy plan would destroy the agreement with Egypt and was likely to lead to a return to the 1967 borders and to a PLO-Palestinian state.

Benzion Rubin (NRP) said that Israel had one thing in mind when it spoke of autonomy, while the other side had in mind something that would lead to a Palestinian state. Why had the promised discussion of the nature of the autonomy been put off? It would have been batter to settie this matter before signing the peace treaty. He regretted that Begin in his opening speech had not sean fit to say a word of encourage ment to the Rafiah area settlers.

Shafik Assad (Democratic Movement) said that God has destined the Middle East to live in peace. If the hoped-for cooperation between the peoples of the region is realized, the area will return to its former glory.

Meir Wilner (Democratic Front for Peace and Equality) said that an independent Palestinian state on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip would not constitute a danger to Israel and would enable the eetablishment of a true peace that would contribute to Israel's security. Eliezer Avtebi (NRP) dscried Israel's return to the international boundary with Egypt, its surrender of the Sinai oil-fields, and "worst of all, the dismantling of Jewish settlements." Yerobam Mosbel (Alignment-Labour) said that if Ieraells developed good person-to-person relationships with Egyptians, close ties would eventually be forged between the working people and labour movements in Israel and the Arah states.

Rabbi Menahem Pornsh (Agudat Ylsrael) said that there was a guiding hand in the universe - in the peace treaty as in everything else. No one could have foreseen the developments of the past year and a half. Michael Dekel (Liknd-Herut) noted, in a highly emotional speech that in the debate on the Camp David agreements be had spoken against them (and abstained on the vote). But this time he would vote in favour. Then there had been an alternative. for Begin had not given any "absolute undertaking." But now we had gone too far to back down. Maybe nothing will come of the whole business, he said, but we must give ft a try:""

Amnon Rubinstein (Shai) said that the risk to Israel was far outweighed by the prospect of removing Egypt from the circle of war, contracting the Arab front against Israel, and

(4) No target date for Implementation of autonomy was mentioned in the Camp David agreement - "mention of such a date would have signalled the P.L.O. gang of murderere when to hegin their harassment tactics in Judea and Samaria and Gaza"

(5) The Camp David agreement epoke of "full autonomy to the inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza District" while the new wording would have read as "fuli autonomy to the West Bank and Gaza These two versions, Begin Strip.' said, "are two different worlds"; (6) The proposed letter re-wording would have eliminated the term "adminletrativs council" inserted in hrackets following the term "eelf-governing authority" in describing the etructure of autonomy. By removing this term, or substituting the term "legislative council," any local authority under autonomy could, if it wished, "suddenly declare itself a Palestinian state," Begin claimed ; and (7) The new letter left out the phrase "and other related issues," which Israei wisbed included because this refers to Israel's security as It would be affected by the question of internal and external security responeibilities in the West Bank and Gaza District.

Begin toid of a letter he had received from President Carter on Monday. The letter informed him, "We have received a communication from President Sadat saying that, within a month following Israei's withdrawal to the interim line in Sinai, Egypt would aesign a resident ambassador to Israel and would receive a resident Israeli amhassador in Egypt." More fighting in west Iran between Kurdish rebels and gov't forces

TEHERAN. - Fresh fighting flared yesterday between Iranian troops and Kurdish rebels in the western city of Sanandaj, and the revolutionary government said it had sent military reinforcements to the area.

Eighty-six people were reported killed and 200 wounded during fighting in Sanandaj on Monday.

A cease-fire was declared on Monday after intervention by local religious leaders, but yesterday the national radio, the "Voice of the Revolution," quoted Deputy Prime Minister Amir Entezam as saying fighting had resumed.

Entezam told Reutere later that soldlers and a few transport helicopters had been sent to Sanandaj hut gave no figures. He said no tanks or fighter planes had been despatched.

He described the situation in Sanandaj yesterday afternoon as much the same as it was on Monday, indicating the government had so far failed to achieve any breakthrough. Entezam said rebels still controlled the Sanandaj radio station, had taken over the provincial governor-general's offices and were laying siege to an army garrison.

It was still not clear how the bloody fightiog erupted on Sunday. Religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and members of the provisional government have been careful not to blame the Kurdish population of the area, saying the fighting was fanned by revolutionary elements." "counter-

The Kurds have been pushing for self-determination for many years. One citizen of Sanandaj told foreign reporters by telephone to Teheran yesterday that belicopter gunships were supporting the besieged garrison troops for the second successive day, firing down on Kurdish rebels.

Yesterday's fighting was on the Perslan new year's eve, with Iranians preparing for a five-day holiday. Several rallies were also beld around the country to mark the 28th anniversary of the nationalization of the oil industry.

The rallies hailed former Iranian prime minister Mohammad Mossadegh, who nationalized oil in 1951 and briefly ousted the shah in 1953 before a military coup put the monarch back in power.

In Teberan, a grandson of Mossadegb, Hsdayatoliah Matin-Daftari, announcing the platform of a new political group, the National Democratic Front, called for autonomy for Iranian Kurds.

Matin-Daftari said his new political group would boycott the forthcoming referendum on whether or not to set up an Islamic republic, unless the wording was changed.

Iranians will be asked to vote on March 80 whether they want an Islamic republic to replace the monarchy.

He called for separate referendums on abolishing the monarchy and then choosing what form of republic Iran should become. With unemployment up to 4 million, and more expected becauss of the post-revolutionary recession. Iran's Ministry of Labour said yesterday that foreign employees in non-essential jobs will be dismissed in two stages under new regulations to take effect in a month's time.

The new labour regulation is expected to affect about 500,000 workers, mostly from Indla. Paklstan, Afgbanistan and the Philippines, employed on construction sites in various parts of Iran.

Employment of foreigners in Iran without a work permit is forbidden. About 200.000 foreign workers are illegally working in the country.

Meanwhile, Ayatolian Khomeini, committed to abolishing prostitution as part of a wave of Islamic reforms, has ordered the Labour Ministry to find prostitutes new jobs. Moslem fanatics burnt down most of Teheran's brothel quarter last month in an outburst which local newspapere dubbed 'purification by fire.'

The capital's chief religious authority, Ayatollah Mabmoud Talegbani, condemned the attack and sent groups of mullahs to protect the area — usually a forbidden zone for devout Moslems.

Prostitutes are now back in business in Teberan, touting for custom on some of the main avenues or operating out of tiny squalid brothels while rows of clients wait on metal chairs. (Reuter, AP)

LUFTHANSA. - Lufthansa airlines in Cologne cancelled 58 mostly domestic flights yesterday when some of its pllots walked off the job to press demands for a new labour oontract. The pilots refused to fly between 5 and 8.30 a.m., affecting some 4,000 passengers.

Judge implicates mercenaries in S. African double murder

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter): - A former judge said yesterday that two German ex-mercenaries were paid to commit the eensational double murder of prominent South African financler and politician Robert Smit and his wife 16 months ago.

And be linked the killings with the "slush funds" ecandal rocking the government. Joseph Ludorf, retired Supreme Court judge and now a private lawyer, said his information came from a client, a former South African Airways pilot whom he did not name.

Ludorf sald in a press statement

Both had been shot and Mrs. Smit had also been stabbed in the back 14 times.

Smit, 44, a former representative to the International Monetary Fund in Washington, was managing director of Santam International, an institution which raises foreign capital for South African business. Tipped as a future finance minister, be had moved to Springs to campaign as a candidate for the ruling National Party in the general election. He was murdered one week before polling. The killings caused a sensation in South Africa, but despite intensive investigations no one has been charged in connection with the double murder.

UNITED NATIONS (AP). - Praise for U.S. President Jimmy Carter's Middle East peace efforts was heard oo Monday for the first time in the UN Security Council's debate of Israeli policies in the administered territories. An anti-Israel draft resolution dropped a clause calling for sanctions against Israel. Addressing the council's saventh session on Monday, Norway's Amhassador Ole Algard urged the council to act in such a way that it furthers and not hinders the cause of peace in the region.

The Norwegian government believed a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel was a first step in the peace process, he eaid, adding that only recognition of Israel can bring about a just and lasting colution to the region's conflicts.

Before the Norwegian spoke, a revised draft resolution sponsored by four non-aligned nations was circulated among council members. While it still calls for the establishment of a commission of council members to make an on-the-spot investigation of Israell practices in the territories, it makes no mention of possible sanctions against Israel. TEL AVIV. - Tel Aviv Maccabi opened the semi-final round of the Netional Basketball League's first division playoffs Monday night with a predictable 113-77 rout of Yagur Ha'emek Hapoel, but the big story was Tel Aviv Hapoel's upset of Ramat Gan Hapcel, 77-74.

Tel Aviv Happel had to do without the services of the playmaker Barry Leibowitz and came into the game with two of their rebounders playing with injuries. The action at Yad Eliahu began with Tel Aviv's John Willis' superb shooting display, as he hit nn 11 of 13 shots from the field and secred 28 pointe in the first half. of the entire human race. "It proclaims the necessity and in-evitability of the unification of mankind, assorts that It is gradually approaching and claims that nothing short of the transmuting spirit of God can ultimately succeed in bringing it about.

'It moreover enjoins upon its followers the primary duty of an unfettered search after truth, condemns ail manner of prejudice and superstition, declares the purpose of religion to be the promotion of amity and concord, proclaims its essential harmony with science, and recognizee it as the foremost agency for the pacification and the orderly progress of human society.

'The Baha'l faith unequivocally maintnins the principle of equal rights, opportunities and privileges for men and women, insists on compulsory cducation, prescribes monogamy, discourages divorce, emphasizes the strict obedience to one's government, exalts to the level of worship any work performed in the spirit of service, urges the crea-tion or selection of an auxiliary international language, and delincates the outlines of those institutions that must establish and perpetuate the general peace of mankind."

AFTER THE DEATH of Shoghi Rab-hani, who had no children, the leadership of the religion passed, in necordance with the writings of the founders, to an clocted group of nine members who make up the Universal House of Justice.

The election takes place in Haifa every five years nt n convention of the representatives of the 90,000 Baha'i centres throughout the world. Each centre elects nine represen-tatives to their country's National Baha'l Assembly, and they serve as the delegates to the Halfa convention. The first Universal House of Justice was elected in April, 1963, and the most recent election took place at Halfa in April, 1978. Near the Mt. Carmel shrine, the building of the International Baha'l Archivee was completed in 1957. Constructed in the classical Greek nrcbitecturni stvie in white, imported Italian marble, with a green tiled roof, it is a private museum of Baha'i relice and historical matters. have two more buildings.

From the Universal House of Justice it will be possible to look out over the monument to the daughtsr of the Baha'uliah in the Baha'i garden across the Haifa Bay to the Bahji shrine in Acre. In April, 1971, the Israel govern mant granted the Baha'is official recognition as a religion. The group does not carry out any missionary activitlee in Israei. BUT A DARK CLOUD now bangs over the World Centre. The Haifa Municipality has granted a licence to a local contractor for the construction of a 26-storey apartment building in Rehov Hillcl. When it is completed, the npartment building will partially block the view of the Universal House of Justice.

The recently elected mayor, Aricb Gurel, told reporters this month that be was unable to do anything nbout the licence, which had been granted by a previous city administration.

From the strictly legal viewpoint, the mayor may be right. But to many Haifa residents the attitude is incomprebensible. Indeed, two councillors, one from the mayor's own party, have tabled questions on the matter.

the initial injury. DISLOCATION of a joint occurs when the ends of the bones that meet to form it loce complete contact with each other. Ucually, as in the case above. the cause is some severe or particularly forceful trauma to the olnt. Lesser trauma may hring about partial dislocation, or subluxation, of a joint. The normal stability of a joint depends on several factors; among shape of the bony ends making up the joint and the actual tissues, ligaments and muscles surrounding the joint and thus bracing it. The most common site in the body for traumatic dislocations is the upper limh. In adults, for example, dislocation of a shoulder is not terribly uncommon either after a beavy fall on the outstretched hand or following a severe direct blow to the shoulder area. The upper part of the arm bone above the elbow, the bumerus, is forced out of the shoulder joint, usually forwards, and, as a result, the normal round contour of the joint is altered. Such a dislocation must be put back as soon as possible. This can generally be done without much difficulty although an anaesthetic is often necessary to allow adequate relaxation of the surrounding tissues and pain relief. After a few days of resting the area, the patient can begin activating his shoulder again. Usually that is the end of the story. Sometimes the damage sustained to the tissues around the joint remains and predisposes to further dislocations, often after relativciy minor trauma or sometimee even if the unlucky individual just raises his arm sideways and outwards from hie body. In such casee surgery may be advised to prevent recurrences. The operation undertaken involves fixing the muscles around the joint to limit those movements of the joint "encouraging" dislocation.

THE ELBOW may also be the site of dielocation, both in adults and children, and again the etory is usually one of a beavy fall on the hand. In this case, the two forearm bones are pushed backwards at the elbow behind the lower end of the bumerus. Principals of treatment are similar to those for a dislocated sboulder, hut recurrent dislocation is not usually a prohlem afterwards.

Much more common here is a condition in young children often called pulled elbow." This is a subluxation of the elbow end of one of the two forearm bones, the radius. I see one or two cases every year, and the classic story is that the child has been lifted by his wrists or that his wrist has been pulled with some - in crossing a busy road, for force example. After this the child complains of pain at the elhow, and there is restriction of movement at the joint. Fortunately, the condition can be corrected by replacing the displaced bone in a simple manoeuvre that can be done in the office. Recurrence is unlikely as long as the child's wrists are respected thereafter.

TEL AVIV. - Beno M. Gittor, banker, international husinessman and philanthropist, has for the second time in his career assumed the position of adviser to the Finance Minister. Owing to his many husiness interests in Israel, the appointment had to be approved by the Attorney-General. Gitter at one time also served as adviser to the late Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir.

In an interview with The Jerusalem Fost Gitter spelled out the

"I discovered investors ready to invest in shares of Israeli companies regiztered on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange, rather than becoming direct partners in the enterprisoo in question," explained Gitter.

Based on the findings during the exploratory trip, Gitter has proposed and received Treasury approval for a novel plan for investing in Israeli industrial enterprises. According to the plan. forsign invostors would receive priority to ordoring shares of Institutional investors generally may order up to 40 per cent of any new issue. Under the new plan up to 60 per cant of the new issua would be made available to institutional and foreign investors. Thie would eliminate the necessity of having the order filled on an allocation basis, which is often the case when an issue is oversubscribed.

The foreign investors wishing to participate in a given issue would form a foreign corporation specifically for this purpose. Shares purchased by such a corporation would be placed in trust with a local trust company for at least ona year. Theso shares would later be released for sale, if this was desired.

The foreign investor would also have the benefit of the conventional underwriters discount.

Gitter was convinced that with the belp of his plan millions of dollars of foreign capital could he made available to Israel industry. Ho has eet aside three months this summer to tour the Americas to enlist invest ment funde. He already bas number of propositions which bo will discuss with prospective investors but prefers, at this juncture, not to go into details.

Gitter is an inveterate optimist and is confident that he can initiate investments running into millions of dollars. It should be remembered that it was Gitter, during the Sapir era, who almost oingle-handedly raised $25m. to launch the Clal investment company on a major ex-pansion programme. "Only this August I was ablo to secure a new $4.5m. investment in Cial. The shares have dono inordinately well and] know that the investor is more than

No one foresaw any of this, least of all the Cartar Administration economists who early last autumn were putting together an antiinflation plan based on a gradual slowing of economic growth. WASHINGTON. - Industry in the

and peculiarly isolated boom that's headachea

Alfred Kahn, President Carter's chief of the inflation fight, believes that for "something like the last six months" the U.S. economy has been "overheated."

Citing recent large price increases not just for food and energy products, but on everything from iron and stoel scrap (up 6.8 per cent in February) and cement (up almost 6 per cent in one month), Kahn concluded, "what we obvionely soo bore is an overheated economy."

Can the wage-price standards contain the surge? Kahn is not par-ticularly sanguine. "No one ever pretended that voluntary - or even mandatory - etandards can effectively restrain inflation when aggregato demand is excessive," be told the Economic Club of Chicago last week.

Virtually every economist who is willing to put out a forecast still thinks the economy is going to cool off. In fact, the big difference among forecasters at this point is whethe the drop in growth will turn into a recession and, if so, how soon and how severe that recession will be. And somo economists bolieve tho industrial boom ultimately will delay the recession and make it deeper

Ombudsmen's convention planned for Jerusalem

Dollar slips marginally

NAVEH AMIRIM

LONDON (AP). — Tha dollar dipped marginally on tha world's money markets yesterday. The price of gold fluctuated mildly in builion trading. The dollar slipped as several Euro-pean currencies, including the Swiss March 20 franc and the Italian lira, strengthened with some hefty help from their central banks. The U.S. currency has shown some signs of improving in recent days, but daalers noted it still is plagued by an underlying weakness.

Dealers raported lacklustre trading and noted the money market apparently has surmounted fears of an Arah oil embargo on the U.S. called for hy PLO leader Yasser Arafat. In Tokyo the dollar closed at 207.225 yen, slightly down on Monday'e 207.775 yen. Dealers blamed selling pressure, mainly from foreign hanks in Japan, for the dollar's dip. In London it cost $2.0825 to buy one

British pound. Monday'e close was $2.0229, which maant the dollar had weakened. Here'e how the dollar fared in other European foreign exchanges yesterday, compared to Monday's late figures:

Paris - 4.2920 franes, fractionally down from 4.2927; Frankfurt — 1.8622 Deutechmarke, down from 1.8630; Zurich — 1.6830 Swiss france, down from 1.6853; Milan - 839.60 lire, down from 839.75; Amsterdam - 2.0085 guilders, down from 2.0105.

Jerusalam Post Reporter Nine state or provincial ombudamen from around the world will arrive in Jerusalem on Sunday to prepare the Second International Ombudamen .Convention, which le scheduled to take place here next year.

The complaints commissioners, led by Dr. Randall Ivany, the omhudsman of the Canadian province of Alberta, will be the guests of Israel's ombudaman, Dr. Yitzhak Ncbenzahl, who had suggested Jerusalem as the eite of the convention.

The steering committee members who are preparing the convention come from Alaska, Donmark, France, West Germany, Australia, Fiji and Canada. They will meet with President Yitzhak Navon, Knesset Speaker Yitzhak Shamir, Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek and other dignitaries and tour the country, in addition to discussing the details of organizing their conference.

THE ISRAEL POUND continued to be davalued against the U.S. dollar. Yesterday the pound fall by another 10 agorot. So far in March the pound has been devalued by more than seven per cent. Financial observers now suggest that the rate of devaluation may rival the rise of the Consumer Price Index in the current year.

Triumph and pretence

"THE GOVERNMENT le entitled to make concessions. But it is not entitled to present a concession as though it were not a concession, nor to claim that it only seems to be a cancession."

This telling criticism by Labour leader Peres of Premler Begin's defence of the peace treaty with Egypt in the Knesset yesterday no doubt fell on deaf official ears. But it will have struck a responsive chord in the minds of many citizens who strongly favour peace, even the necessarily defective peace now cancluded with Egypt, but who refuse to see shining virtue in every dire necessity.

Reluctance to admit failure may be characteristic of most political leaders everywhere. Mr. Begin, however, eeems to have made it, and without good reason, into a hallmark.

The entire record of Mr. Begin's negotiation of the peace with Mr. Sadat has been, nn Israel's elde, a strange tale nf militant rbetaric soon fizzling out to leave but a column of smake with which to screen the facts from the public at home.

Apart from suggesting a rather low opinion of the political understanding of Mr. Begin'e countrymen, this unedifying practice has also served an useful purpose. For the end result of the Premier's dipiomatic labours has been, as it was bound to be with the required dose of concessions, a peace treaty with Egypt.

Nane but iunatice on the fringes af right and left would deny Mr. Begin this personal triumph. In parliament yesterday, while voicing their approval in principle of the treaty, even avowed party foes bandsomely acknowledged the nation's debt tn the Prime Minister.

Apparently, this cannot satisfy Mr. Begin. While he admitted towards the end of his lengthy, and profusely heckled, address that "we've made come beavy sacrifices" in securing this "breach in the ring of (Arab) hostility," the burden of his message was that his government had abtained, with but trifling semantic changes, most everything it had bargained for.

This can only be a pretence. The interpretation of Article 6 (ii) and 6(v) to which the cabinet gave its assent last week, on Mr. Begin'e warm recommendation, is virtually indistinguishable from that which the Premier had publicly, and repeatedly, declared to vacate the treaty of all meaning and, indeed, to convert it into a "pact of war."

The accepted version, too, neutralizes any claim on Israei's part that Egypt'e obligations under the treaty are independent of the progress of the autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza; and that they take precedence over Egypt's warlike undertakings to other Arab states.

It is arguable that this concession, too, was inevitable -- as another heavy sacrifice for the eake of peace. What cannot be contended is that it is nothing of the sort.

Yet the illusionism that marked Mr. Begin's asseasment of the past, also informed - and this le of even greater importance - his estimate of the future.

Forcefully contradicting last week's predictions by Egyptian Foreign Minister Khalil, Mr. Begin stated emphatically that there would be no return ever to the 1949 armistice lines. no redivision ever of Jerusalem, and no Palestinian state ever.

The issue of Jerusalem apart, this was decidedly not a reassuring statement. For under the treaty with Egypt, now up for signature, Israel has committed itself to withdrawal right up to the armistice lines. Can the thought be seriously entertained that on the other fronts Israel would be able to hold on forever to the 1967 cease-fire lines?

Neither the facts of international life, nor the facts on the ound, lend much credence to the viability of such an Israeli position. This country can still claim title to new, "eecure and recognized boundaries" that are not eynonymous with either the 1949 or the 1967 frontiers. But this title can be lost by treating Palestinian autonomy as a device to ensure permanent Israeli overlordship in the territories.

ESSENTIALLY what one seeks from Justice Minister Shmuei Tamir is a convincing vindication of the past four months of marking time. Tamir, as much as anyone in the cabinet (save the Prime Minietsr, who naturally bears a special responsibility), was responsible for the stonewalling which some view as icgalistic haggling but which the government maintains was a defence of vital principles without which there could have been no treaty.

Midway through the Blair House talks in October, Tamir was the moving spirit behind the famous "instructione" which the cabinet gave the Israeli negotiators. These included an order to obtain a clause in the body of the treaty that would counterbalance the references to the Camp David Framework and the comprehensive settlement in the draft preamhle. That clause became the celebrated Article Six (ii) and Tamir thereafter led the dogged fight to protect its content from the "interpretative notes" which Egypt introduced in an effort to weaken Its. meaning.

Tamir, a leading trial lawyer before be became Justice Minister, was also in the forefront of the drawn-out battle for Article Six (v) (the "priority of obligations" clause), and against the ''target date'' which Egypt demanded right up until the last round, which would have linked the treaty to the implcmentation of the Palestinian autonomy.

Was it all worthwhile? That is the question that many of us inevitably ask upon reading the convoluted for mulae which were eventually agreed upon to overcome these prohiems.

TAMIR'S ANSWER le an unequivocal yes, and, cogent advocate that be is. be follows up with many persuasive arguments.

He concedes that Ideally It is "very desirable to conclude any agreement quickly — for political and psy-chological reasons." But be places the entire hlame on Egypt for the delay that eet in after the Blair House negotiators had hammered out the treaty text by early in November.

Article VI (5)

The Israeli cabinet, setting aside a number of reservations over the preamble, announced its readiness on November 11 to sign the treaty text and to continue negotiating on the "side letter." President Carter, Tamir recalls, was "very pleased" at that decision when Premier Begin telephoned it to him.

The decision was not, says Tamir. a rejection of the "side letter" which in turn prompted Egyptian rejections of parts of the treaty text. "It wasn't like that at all," says Tamir. "The letter was not a direct outgrowth of Camp David. The cabinet therefore said Israel would be ready to continue negotiating over it, and genuinely expected that agreement would be reached on it soon,"

But (quite separately) there was a reassessment in Cairo; the Egyptians demanded that Article Six (ii) and (v) be omitted or changed, and that they be given a liaison presence in Gaza. And there were Egyptian public statements on the 'target date'' which Israel could not accept.

"... The Egyptian tactic all the time since then was to 'put in new goats'." (This is a reference to the Hassidic tale of the goat and the crowded housing problem which has often been cited during the treaty negotiations - D.L.)

"There wasn't a moment from that stage until the end of the negotiations when the Egyptians said, 'We are ready to sign',' Tamir continues. Israel for its part remained ready to sign the Blair House treaty text without interpretativc cmbelliabment (though not the "side ietter"). THE POSITION of the cabinet majority, to which he adhered, says Tamir, was ''to strive to reach the peace agreement with all our might - hut not at any price." On one flank there were ministers who did not consider the remaining issues of disputc Important enough to thwart the peace. At the other extreme, there were ministers who were consistently uncomfortable with the Camp

David eettlement. But for the mainstream, led by the Prime Minister, Article Six (ii) and (v), the "target date," the question

The cabinet, the Knesset and the nation would have rejected a peace with these ingredients missing. It would have been a peace imposed by Egyptian diktat.'

Nor have the months of tough and often strained bargaining, climaxed by the Carter compromise, been wholly prejudicial to the evoluton of Israeli-Egyptian relations, Tamir believes.

"We have demonstrated clearly our enthusiasm for peace, our flex-Ibility and realism. But at the same time, we have shown that there are certain 'red lines' beyond which we simply will not go.

Tamir stresses that, thrugh a lawyer, be does not exaggerate the value of legal formulae. "I know their value is limited," be eays. "But they are the basis, the framework. In building, for instance, you cast great concrete walls by pouring the substance into filmsy wooden frames. The concrete hardens and the frames are removed. But without the wooden frames - you can't mould the concrete.

"Similarly with the treaty. It will be the political realities that will ultimately determine the course of relations between Israel and Egypt. I know that as well as anyone. But there must be a formal framework in which to channel those relations. And care must be taken to avold misunderstandings.

"In 30 years of legal practice, I always said to cilents when I finished drawing up a contract, 'I hope you'll nsver look at It' ... " But that does not mean that contracts, or treaties, should not be scrupulously and meticulously drafted.

READERS' LETTERS CONSERVATIVE AND REFORM JEWS IGNOR

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

March 1979

Groes (March 9) written by an "ohservant," l.e. preeumahly Orthodox Jew, is in many ways beartening, because it advocates mutual tolerance of the religious and the non-religious sections of the population.

Groee, the latter are apparently bomogeneous, that is to say for them, "the Sabbath is a day-off." Mr. Gross ignores the fact that there are many Jewe who are not Orthodox, but nevertheless are not "non-religious," To these Jews, who belong to the Conservative or the Progressive movements, Jndaism has a central place in their lives, but is a living eet of valoes, which although in themselves eternal, are ever adaptable to the present.

Sir, - The article by Ya'acov However, in the opinion of Mr.

Sooner or later, Mr. Begin will have to give way on his present (which is already markedly different from his erstwhile) concept of autonomy.

He will have to do so if only because Israei's army cannot hold indefinitely in thrall a large Arab population, whose 'legitimate rights" have already been recognized at Camp David, and which doee not wish to be ruled by Israei. But he will also have to do so because any other course of action would be inconsistent with Israei'e own eense of justice.

To believe otherwise is only self delusion. And the great bounty of peace, however still limited in scope, may be in danger of being lost through such delusion.

reements prevail over this treaty. The foregoing is not to be construed as contravening the provisions of Article VI (5) of the treaty, which reads as follows:

"Subject to Article 103 of the UN charter, in the event of a conflict between the ohligations of the parties under the present treaty and any of their other obligations, the obligations under this treaty will be binding and implemented."

Agreed minute to Annex Ш:

The treaty of peace and Annex III thereto provide for establishing normal economic relations between the parties. In accordance therewith, It is agreed that such relations will include normal commercial sales of oll by Egypt to Israel, and that Israel shall be fully entitled to make bids for Egyptian-origin oil not needed for Egyptian domestic oil consumption. and Egypt and Its oil concessionaires will entertain hids made by Israel on the same basis and terms as apply to other hidders for such oll.

Agreed minute to Annex I to treaty of peace

Article VI, paragraph B, of Annex I provides as followe:

"The parties shall agree on the nations from which the UN force and observere will be drawn. They will he drawn from nations other than those which are permanent members of the UN Security Council."

The parties will recognize that this provision gives each party a veto over the other's choice of nations, and that either of the parties could thereby stymic all efforts to establish an agreed UN force. They bave therefore agreed as follows:

> "With respect to the provisions of paragraph 3. Article VI. of Annex I, if no agreement ie reached hetween the perties, they will accept and support a U.S. proposal concerning the composition of the UN force and observers."

Jordan is invited to join the negotlatione. The delegations of Egypt and Jordan may include Palestinians from the West Bank and Gaza Strip or other Palestinians as mutually agreed. The purpose of the negotiation shall be to agree, prior to the elections, on the modalities for establishing the elected selfgoverning authority (administrative council), define its powers and responsibilities, and agree upon other related issues. In the event Jordan decidee not to take part in the negotiations, the negotiations will he held by Israel and Egypt. The two governments agree to negotiate continuously and in good faith to conclude these negotiations at the earliest possible date. They also agree that the objective of the negotiations is the establishment of the self-governing authority in the West Bank and Gaza in order to provide full autonomy to the inhabitants.

Egypt and Israel set for thsmselvee the goal of completing the negotiations within one year, so that elections will be held as ex-peditiously as possible after agreement has been reached between the parties. The celf-governing eutbority referred to in the "Framework for Peace in the Middle East" will be estahlished and Inaugurated within one month after it has been elected, at which time, the transitional period of five years will begin. The Israell military government and its civilian edministration will be withdrawn, to be replaced hy the self-governing authority, as specified in the "Framework for Peace in the Middle East." A withdrs wai of Israeli armed forcee will then take place and there will he a redeployment of the remaining Israell forces into specified eecurity locations. This letter also confirms our understanding that the U.S. government will participate fuily in all steges of nagotiations.

Members and Supporters of Oz Veshalom Welcome the Breakthrough to Peace

We call upon the religious community and its elected representatives to support the ratification of the peace agreement and to condemn the attempts at sabotaging the peace pracess, especially when such attempts are made in the alleged name of Torab of Israel.

We view with the utmost gravity the use of verbal and physical violence, which must lead to the eventual destruction of the democracy and social fabric of the State of Israel, Heaven forbid.

> Sincerely, Menahem Begin

Dear President Sadat (Prime Minister Begin):

I wish to confirm to you that subject to United States constitutional processes:

In the event of an actual or threatened violation of the treaty of peace between Egypt and Israel, the U.S. will, on request of one or both of the parties, consult with the partias with respect thereto and will take such other action as It may deem appropriate and helpful to achieve compliance with the treaty.

The U.S. will conduct acrial monitoring as requested by the parties pursuant to Annex I of the treaty.

The U.S. believes the treaty provision for stationing of UN personnel in the designated limited force zone can and should be implemented by the UN Security Council. The U.S. will exert its utmost efforts to obtain the regulate action hy the Security Council.

If the Security Council fails to establish and maintain the arrangements called for in the treaty. the president will be prepared to take those steps necessary to ensure the establishment and maintenance of an acceptable alternative multinational force.

Sincerely, Jlmmy Carter

PLANE INCIDENT

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Poet

Sir, - I take exception to come etatements by Benny Morris in his review of a book on David Elazar (February 23).

When referring to the Libyan airplane incident of February 1973, Morris claims that the Libyan airliner "complied with the signals of Israeli fighters to turn back to Refidim air base, but instead of landing there as instructed, continued westward towards Egypt." This is simply not true. I refer to the report hy ICAO experts, No. C-WP/5764 of May 1, 1973. It is clear beyond any doubt from that report that at no time did the Libyan airliner comply with instructions given to it. The ICAO report proves, beyond any doubt, that the Israeli pilots followed normal internetional procedure for Interception of foreign aircraft. JAN BENJ. RODNER
